1. Course Objectives

To learn better the meanings of "myth"; to study and compare mythologies of different cultures; to discover how myth informs cultural values; to explore the differences between myth and science; and, most importantly, to realize more about yourself by better understanding the myths you do and don't live by.

2. Course Content

Readings in Greek, Native American, and Asian mythologies (mainly), along with films connected with the myths.

3. Writing Requirements

Seven quizzes; unannounced; factual and interpretive questions.

A final exam/term paper, 2500-3000 words. Topic: Referring (in at least some detail) to most of the assigned texts, show what "myths" you do/don't live by, and why your life is/isn't purposeful, is/isn't meaningful. Due _____.

A journal. At least 1500 words weekly for 4 weeks; at least 3 entries a week; clearly dated; typed or written legibly every-other-line (illegible journals will be graded F). Dreams—your own or others' (if you remember your dreams, they can become a major part of your journal). Detailed interpretive responses to texts (readings and films) both before and after class discussions; but focus especially on (parts of) texts not discussed in class. Connections between texts and personal/social/political experience. The journal, of course, will be "rough" writing (spontaneous thoughts, feelings, memories, and associations recorded without worrying too much about organization or the mechanics of writing). Nevertheless, it should be considered a major work, a treasure. Criteria for evaluation: regularity, fullness, variety, thoughtfulness (originality), CONCRETENESS (detailed references to texts). Due _____.

4. Grading

The exam/term paper will be graded using a + / - system (e.g. B+, B- etc.). Criteria for evaluation: concreteness (detailed references to texts), clarity of thought and focus, grammar and other formal concerns, proofreading. The grade for the quizzes will be curved at the end of the term.

5. Final grade

The final grade will be determined by weighing the various requirements as follows:

Quizzes	30%
Term paper	30%
Journal	30%
Class participation	10%

6. Attendance

Attendance is not required, but quizzes cannot be made up, without an officially excused absence.

7. Late papers

Late papers cannot be accepted.

8. Students with Disabilities

If you have a documented disability and wish to receive academic accommodations, please contact the Coordinator of the Office of Disability Services (581-6583) as soon as possible.

9. Since mythologies worship the primordial power and wonder of sex/creation, in this class we will discuss sexually explicit matters. To cite just one (surprising?) example, we may discuss the scholar John Allegro's point that "The name Jesus/Joshua (the Greek and Hebrew forms) means 'the semen that heals' or 'fructifies,' the god-juice that gives life. To be smeared with this powerful liquid, above all to absorb it into his body, was to bring the worshipper of the 'Jesus' into living communion with God, indeed, to make him divine."

10. Plagiarism

If you cheat, please do me the favor of successfully deceiving me and don't treat me as if I were born yesterday (or born when you were born). Any cheating that I detect will lead to an F in the course for the guilty student.
